

Wellman ER Strategy

- We are a producer of nylon and polypropylene, which is the basis for our EcoLon® product line. However, unlike our competitors whose fundamental feedstock is oil, our feedstock is post consumer carpet, found primarily in North America.
- Our proprietary, patented manufacturing process, combined with our quality control systems and internal lab expertise provides a level of consistent quality and cost stability that translates into significant competitive advantages for us and our customers.
- We partner with our customers to extend this competitive advantage into a growing number of products, applications, and markets around the world, to grow in mutually profitable ways, and improve the environment in the process.
